Saint Edward High School vs. Walsh Jesuit	12/16/2025	Prepared by: Coach Donelon

Walsh Jesuit enters this game at 0–3, but they are much improved from last season. Offensively, they struggle with guards who can apply pressure and are not overly athletic. They look to drive and kick, drive and dump off, slip screens, and feed the post to create offense.

We need to push the ball in transition, as they have difficulty locating the ball early, and attack gaps while moving the ball without over-dribbling—passing up good shots for great ones. They are prone to being beat off the dribble and have slow weak-side rotations. Be ready for some 2-3 zone, where the middle is open, requiring quick reversals and hard cuts to the rim. Play with confidence and swag, take pride in every possession, and do not let them hang around.

STARTERS

RIGHTY | 2.3 PPG | FACILITATOR

#2 Noah Silversten | 100% FT

He has shaky ball handling and can be pressured into turnovers, particularly when faced with physical on-ball defense, as he struggles against contact and does not have explosive speed to separate from defenders. When rushed or crowded, he can be forced into ill-advised shots. On drives to the rim, he often avoids contact, preferring to use a floater to finish rather than powering through defenders. He likes to rely on a crossover move to get downhill, but disciplined defenders can contain him. From the perimeter, he is a catch-and-shoot threat, so defenders should run him off the line and make him put the ball on the floor. Defensively, he is prone to giving up face cuts to the rim, as he can lose awareness of his man when playing off the ball.

RIGHTY | 6.7 PPG | SHOOTER

#15 Anthony Spain | 100% FT

On the season, he is shooting 43% from three-point range, making him a legitimate perimeter threat. Defensively, we must run him off the three-point line and force him to put the ball on the ground. When driving, he will look to create separation by pushing off, so defenders must play him clean and without using their hands. Around the rim, he is comfortable using a floater and is also capable of finishing through contact. He is primarily a right-hand driver, consistently looking to get to his right, but will spin back to the middle when cut off. Additionally, he is active on the offensive glass, creating second-chance opportunities.

#10 Jake Nowak | NO ATT

He is a perimeter guard who can be pressured into turnovers when defenders are active and physical on the ball. From the outside, he is primarily a catch-and-shoot player who needs time and space to get his shot off, making it important to run him off the three-point line and force him to put the ball on the floor. Off the dribble, he looks to avoid contact and can be disrupted by aggressive on-ball pressure, which increases his tendency to make mistakes and turn the ball over.

RIGHTY | 12 PPG | GLASS - DUMP OFFS

#1 Dave Jacobus | 11.1% FT

Primarily scores off dump-offs and hard cuts to the rim, consistently moving well without the ball to create scoring opportunities. He is very effective as a rim runner, looking to roll hard to the basket in pick-and-roll action.

From the right block, he prefers to attack baseline, while on the left block he looks to attack the middle. He will take catch-and-shoot opportunities if left open, though he is a below-average perimeter shooter and is most effective inside the paint.

He is an active offensive rebounder, generating second-chance points through put-backs and effort plays. Additionally, he is a very good passer out of the high post, showing strong court awareness and the ability to find cutters and shooters. His constant off-ball movement makes him a reliable option within the flow of the offense.

RIGHTY | 13.7 PPG | POST - GLASS GUY

#24 JP McMullin | 66.7% FT

Be physical with him on the interior and make every touch difficult. On the left block, he is primarily looking to attack middle, while on the right block he prefers to attack baseline. He moves well without the ball, consistently cutting to the rim and rolling hard out of ball-screen actions. He will also step out and shoot it if left open, currently 2-of-3 from outside, but his biggest impact comes around the basket. He is very active on the glass, with 10 offensive rebounds on the season, and will aggressively look for put-backs and second-chance points. We must wall up, be physical, and push him around, emphasizing strong box-outs to limit second and third opportunities.

BENCH

RIGHTY — SOPH — 2 PPG — BACKUP PG

#5 Xavier Steele — 0% FT

Small guard who must be located early in transition to prevent clean looks and easy penetration. He has decent handles but does not respond well to physical guard play and can be disrupted with pressure. When attacking the rim, he primarily looks to drive right and will actively avoid contact, relying on finesse finishes rather than strength. He is comfortable using a floater or euro step to score around the basket. From the perimeter, he is a catch-and-shoot threat and will also look to come off ball screens to get open shots if defenders go under or lose contact.

LEFTY — JUNIOR — 2.5 PPG — SHOOTER

#4 Ja'Cre Kidd — 33.3% FT

Primary point guard who is very quick in the open court and looks to score in transition. He uses change of pace and changes of direction to attack the defense, but can be pressured into turnovers—key is to keep him out of the paint. When driving to the rim, he is primarily looking to go right, so we must force him left. He will catch and shoot if left open, though his shot has a low release. On the season, he has not attempted a three-point shot.

RIGHTY — JUNIOR — 5 PPG — SHOOTER

#3 Noah Friery — 100% FT

When driving the ball, he primarily looks to finish going to his right and does not seek contact at the rim, often relying on a floater to score. He is a high-volume three-point shooter, with 10 of his 18 field-goal attempts coming from beyond the arc, but he is currently shooting just 20% from three on the season. Run him off the three-point line and make him a driver, forcing him into contested finishes and uncomfortable decisions in the paint rather than allowing catch-and-shoot opportunities.

JUNIOR — 7 PPG — STRETCH BIG - GLASS

#32 Dean Garlick — 75% FT

Strong post presence who looks to set solid screens and roll hard to the rim, consistently putting pressure on the defense in pick-and-roll actions. On the block, he is most comfortable attacking baseline from the right side, while on the left block he prefers to attack middle but does have the ability to spin back baseline if overplayed. Offensively, he looks to score off drive-and-dump situations and is active around the rim, hunting offensive put-backs and second-chance points. He will catch and shoot from the perimeter if left open, but is just 1 of 4 from outside on the season, making him a low-volume, low-efficiency threat from three.

Defensively and on the game plan, it is critical that we keep him off the glass, wall up, and be physical to limit his impact on the boards and around the rim. On offense, we need to make him run the floor, force him to defend in space, and tire him out over the course of the game. He is prone to being beat off the dribble, so attacking him in isolation and ball-screen actions can be effective.

SENIOR — 3 PPG — POST - GLASS

#44 Grant Blascak — NO ATT

Primarily looks to drive RIGHT and should be played NO LEFT HAND – FORCE HIM LEFT at all times. When he does not have a clean, straight-line drive, he will look to take his defender to the block, with a tendency on the right block to attack the baseline. He will catch and shoot from the perimeter if left open, but he is a poor outside shooter and should not be over-respected. Although he profiles as a stretch forward, he has not attempted a three-point shot this season, limiting his true perimeter threat. He is active on the glass, but does not run the floor well, allowing opportunities to beat him down the floor in transition. As a decision-maker, he struggles with ball security and playmaking, evidenced by 5 turnovers to just 1 assist on the season—pressure him, sit on his right hand, and make him uncomfortable handling and passing.
